INTRODUCTION TO THE LITURGY OF THE SUNDAY

*Daniel 12:1-3 * Hebrews 10:11-14, 18 * Mark 13:24-32*

We are destined to live with God forever, to have the fullness of joys in his presence. The Lord is our inheritance, says today's psalm. He will show us the path to life and the fullness of joys in his presence. But we know not when that time will come – for each one of us individually, and for the world. So vigilance is the order of the day: preparing ourselves and the world for the great prince of whom Daniel speaks – the coming of the Son of Man who has taken away our sins. • The prophet Daniel speaks of a time when a great prince shall arise, a guardian of the people, and many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake. The Letter to the Hebrews speaks of the one who offered one sacrifice for sins, and took his seat forever at the right hand of God. In the Gospel, Jesus speaks to his disciples about the Son of Man's coming after a time of tribulation.

SUNDAY REFLECTION

We may not know the day or the hour, but we do know who is coming for us. Every Mass we stand to profess the creed together. Let us pay special attention to the end of the creed: "He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead, and his kingdom will have no end." • Ever since Jesus ascended, the faithful have been waiting for his return. This is where we are today, waiting for Jesus' return. • The readings today draw our attention to this anticipation with which we live. The prophet Daniel foretells what is possible; this second coming could be accomplished at any moment. And in the Gospel, Jesus speaks of the coming kingdom of God and the promise of eternal life. • We profess a belief that this will happen. We hold out hope for life after death. Death was not part of God's original plan for creation. Death was one of the penalties of original sin. All of creation was brought forth by God to be in a perpetual, loving relationship with him, and therefore not subject to suffering and death. Yet, when Adam and Eve chose to act with pride and in disobedience, sin and death entered the world. Even though the sin of our first parents made death an inescapable part of every human life, it did not completely separate human beings from God. Christ, who humbled himself by becoming man, reveals God's divine, unwarranted, and unfailing love. Death, which was the consequence of sin and the situation where we removed ourselves from God, is now overcome through Christ's reconciliation of us to the Father. Death no longer has dominion, for the Holy Spirit has filled us with God's presence and love. • And so that credal statement which we profess, and that hope with which we live, is the foundation of our discipleship. The temptations to sin will still fester within us; the evil one still seeks out our weak spots. Overlaying our struggles, however, are the peace and freedom which Christ has brought to us. We may not know the day or the hour, but we do know who is coming for us, and that he longs to bring us home to him for eternity.
